Dennis O'Connor | CEO, 2into3

"2020, the year of the pandemic, was a global crisis and, as this report shows, it had a severely adverse impact on the earned income and fundraising income of nonprofits, greater in fact than the 2008 crash, but significantly mitigated by increased state support.

In fundraising performance, there was a divergence between larger organisations whose fundraised income grew, and the smaller ones, where it fell. As the sector is mostly comprised of smaller organisations, it was the toughest year for fundraising since 2009. Internationally, the per capita giving gap with U.K, which had closed in 2019, widened again and the fundraising performance gap, in GDP terms, continues to be large. As fundraising recovers from Covid, the key challenge will be figuring out how to close this gap."

Éilis Murray | CEO, Philanthropy Ireland

The value of insights and data on giving cannot be underestimated. It helps to both inform and validate the power of giving and its impact on society. Giving, in all its forms, plays a vital role in supporting our communities.

It is notable in this year's report that while that while fundraised income in 2020 dropped 17%, income from Trusts and Foundations is up 3%. While still needing to grow, this is a positive development in what was a challenging year. It is a positive indicator for the development of philanthropic giving and the role it does and can play in supporting civil society.

The development of policy and an effective framework for philanthropy, currently underway, will help increase philanthropic giving. Understanding the landscape of giving is vital to support the process. The insights presented in this report positively contribute to building that understanding. Well done to TU Dublin and 2into3 for developing this report and to those that have made it possible through their provision of resources.

Dr. Etain Kidney | Head of School, Marketing & Entrepreneurship, TU Dublin

Unprecedented waves of disruption from the global pandemic, a changing public policy ecosystem, and shifts in consumer behaviour were felt by nonprofits globally in 2020. The Giving Ireland report provides crucial insight into the sector, it tells the story of a country in transition, and is a picture of a moment in time that changed how nonprofits operated in order to survive and thrive.

This report has been developed in partnership with TU Dublin for the first time. We are excited to continue this partnership into the future, and to pioneer research into funding in the nonprofit sector with our dedicated Giving Ireland PhD research.

INTRODUCTION

2022 marks an important year for Giving Ireland. This year's report is the 13th of its kind and the third under the Giving Ireland banner. It is also the first year of Giving Ireland's partnership with TU Dublin, an exciting step forward for the sector and indicative of the desire for quality data, insight and collaboration.

2022 was a year of recovery and rebuilding both for the nonprofit sector and for Irish society. This year's report maps the state of the nonprofit sector in 2020, when the pandemic brought much of ordinary life to a halt. This report therefore provides long-awaited insight into the initial effects of the pandemic on the Irish nonprofit sector.

It is the aim of this report not only to capture the effects of the pandemic on the sector, but to illuminate the sector's resilience despite obstacles. Mechanisms undertaken by organisations to cope under unprecedented pressures. The sector plays a critical role in the ability of our society to thrive. Now, we are faced with new challenges, including an impending global recession and intensifying energy and climate crises. We must collectively and proactively build on the sector's strengths and learnings in order to sustain and safeguard the sector and the society it tirelessly serves.

SECTOR OVERVIEW

The Irish nonprofit sector is comprised of a variety of entities which pursue a vast range of activities with social purpose. Otherwise known as the Third Sector, following government and business, the nonprofit sector forms a critical part of the social economy. The social economy, which also encompasses governmental and for-profit entities, is "driven by values of solidarity, the primacy of people over capital, and democratic and participative governance" (OECD). While this report focuses on data specific to nonprofits, it first notes the breadth of the social economy and depth of its impact.

In 2020, according to Benefacts, the nonprofit sector in Ireland consisted of 34,331 organisations and employed an estimated 164,922 people, accounting for 12% of total organisations and contributing 7.7% of the workforce in Ireland (Central Statistics Office; VisionNet)¹. This figure does not include unpaid volunteers or teachers, who are paid directly by the State. The sector reported 93,451 directors or charity trustees, evidence of the sector's central role in Irish society.

Of the 34,331 organisations, about 19,410 were Unincorporated Associations, 10,225 were registered as companies, 3,965 were primary or secondary schools and 731 were friendly societies, cooperatives, industrial societies, political parties, or charter bodies (Benefacts nonprofit sector analysis 2021). These bodies range from long-established institutions to fledgeling organisations.

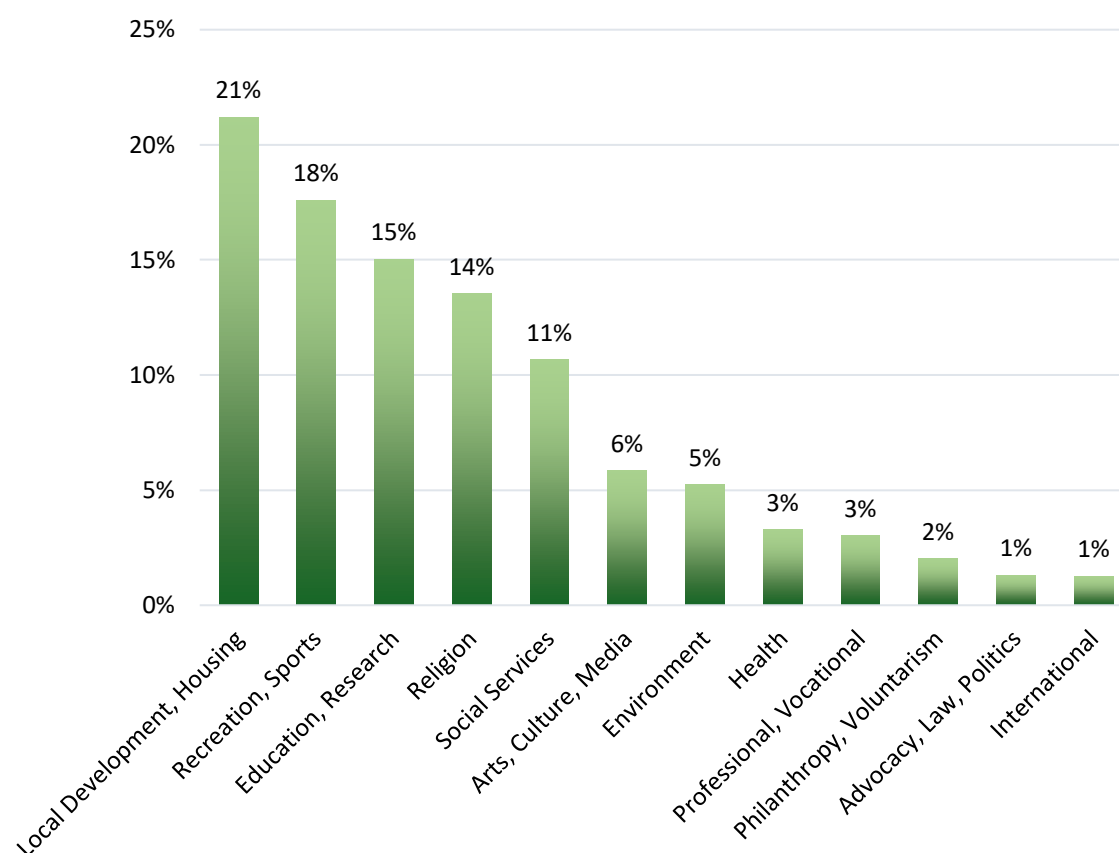

Before its closure in March 2022, the Benefacts database had expanded significantly in recent years. Giving Ireland takes the view, therefore, that while the figure available for 2020 is higher than the figure for 2019 (32,841) or 2018 (29,000) it does not represent real growth of the sector. In fact, it is expected that during this period, a considerable number of organisations were forced to halt their activities either permanently or temporarily as a result of Covid-19. The number of organisations that shared their financial statements in the Charities Regulator decreased during this period from 9,066 in 2019 to 7,542 in 2020.

This report divides the nonprofit sector into twelve subsectors, according to the Johns Hopkins International Classification of Nonprofit Organisations, previously adopted by Benefacts (Salamon & Anheier 1996). The largest subsector is Local Development & Housing, which represents 21% of the nonprofit population in Ireland. Recreation & Sport, Education & Research; Social Services and Religion each also represent a significant portion of the sector. Figure 1, below, presents the distribution of organisations within subsectors.

COVID-19 CHALLENGES

The Covid-19 pandemic had a major and lasting impact on the nonprofit sector. This study analyses data reported from 2019-2020, thus capturing the effects of the crisis on the sector at the height of the pandemic. In response to declining earned and fundraised income, Government support was essential to ensuring the continuation of the vital work provided by the sector.

According to a survey conducted by The Wheel in August 2020, half of all participating organisations experienced increased demand for their supports and services. At the same time, however, funding challenges forced many organisations to reduce hours for paid staff, placing further strain on capacity. The report found that half of organisations indicated that the impact of Covid-19 restrictions on their income was 'quite severe' while 25% reported a 'very severe' impact. Moreover, many participants reported drastically reduced engagement with volunteers, making it difficult for them to maintain engaged volunteer cohorts in the future. The findings also highlighted the importance of the Wage Subsidy Scheme and the emergency COVID-19 Stability Fund to the ability of organisations to continue operating.

Similar results were reported by the BDO Institute for Nonprofit Excellence in the Nonprofit Standards Benchmarking Survey 2020, which surveyed 200 nonprofit organisations across a variety of sectors in the US, including health and human services, higher education, public charities and private and community foundations. The Report identified 'variability in revenue and funding' as the number one challenge for nonprofit organisations. Consequently, staff retention and investment in technology were also identified as major threats, along with multiple other challenges presented in Table 1, below.

DATA, METHODOLOGY AND LIMITATIONS

A sample of 1,179 organisations was selected, representing 3.4% of the total population in the sector. The sample selection was stratified by subsector and then randomised. When extrapolated, the relative size of each subsector in the sample reflects that of the population. In the initial sample, some organisations had abridged or missing accounts for 2020. Those organisations were substituted with similarly sized organisations with available financial information.

This report notes a large volume of abridged accounts within this sector and highlights it as a limitation of the data. Benefacts supplied a database of 7,542 accounts in 2020. Of these accounts, 3,164 (42%) of these accounts were abridged. As shown in Table 2, Recreation and Sport (61%) reported the highest level of abridgement, followed by Environment (58%).

Table 2. Abridgement by subsector in 2020.

In the absence of Benefacts, public access to financial data on the sector has been significantly diminished. The Register of Charities, published by the Charities Regulator, provides data on 10,357 organisations with charitable status. All registered charities are required to submit an annual report to the Charities Regulator. There is currently no legal requirement to attach financial statements to an annual report as certain legislative amendments are required in order to ensure that the required regulations can be introduced in a fair and proportionate manner. While some unincorporated registered charities chose to submit financial statements with their annual reports, there is no legal basis for publishing that information in the absence of the required regulations being made under the 2009 Act. Other nonprofits without charitable status, such as sporting bodies, are excluded from the register. As a consequence of the above, the financial information of almost two thirds of the sector is not publicly available in one place.

The dataset for used for this report was created by merging and comparing financial information from three different sources. Access to financial information was mainly derived from the Register of Charities from the Charities Regulator, as well as a pre-existing Benefacts dataset. Multiple data quality checks were conducted to detect errors or missing values. Any incongruences were corrected manually by checking the financial statements available in the Register of Charities. An estimated 230 organisations of the sample were not charities. For those, the financial statements were obtained from VisionNet. We believe that the increasing amount of data available and this robust methodology has resulted in a dataset that is highly representative and has increased the accuracy of the reported indicators.

Due to the gap in access to non-charity accounts, as well as the tendency for non-charities to file abridged accounts, charities form the majority of this sample and are over represented relative to the true composition of the sector in this regard. This poses a potential limitation to the findings.

Annual accounts often provide limited or aggregate information on fundraising. Therefore, a second, smaller sample of 21 organisations was also used for detailed information on fundraising sources. These organisations anonymously self-reported their fundraised income and costs by method. Any findings using this sample have been clearly indicated as such.

EMPLOYMENT IN NONPROFITS

The sector's workforce experienced a 2% decrease during 2020. While 25% of organisations saw staffing decrease, 19% saw an increase and the remaining 56% saw no change at all.

The sector continued to be dominated by small organisations. In 2020, 70% of nonprofit entities employed 10 or fewer staff and just 6% of organisations exceeded 50 employees. Reflecting the importance of volunteers, a third of organisations had no employed personnel. Additionally, 26% of organisations did not report on staff numbers, indicating that proportions of organisations with no staff may be even higher (Figure 2).

² Organisations that did not provide information on staffing were excluded from the analysis.

Figure 3, below, presents the total number of staff for 2020 and 2019. Social Services employed the largest number of staff, followed by Health. Local Development & Housing and Education & Research, being the 1st and 3rd largest subsectors, also employed considerable numbers of staff in 2020. According to the sample, all subsectors saw a decrease in their workforce during 2020.

TOTAL INCOME

The sector's total income during 2020 was €20.92 billion³. Overall, total income decreased by 5%, reflecting the negative impact of Covid-19 on the sector. Around 30% of nonprofit organisations experienced financial losses during the year. Some sectors were more adversely impacted than others, as shown in Figure 4, below, which presents the total estimated income and expenditure for each subsector. Total income fell short of total expenditure in the subsectors of Health, Environment, Philanthropy and the Arts. Despite this overall decrease, it is likely that additional State support played a vital role in mitigating further income loss.

In comparison to the previous year, all subsectors experienced declines in total income with the exceptions of Religion and Philanthropy & Voluntarism, which increased substantially. There are several factors which may have contributed to this. Firstly, religious and philanthropic organisations in this sample frequently had primary objects and key activities perhaps better aligned with other subsectors, like Health, Social Services, Local Development & Housing and Education & Research. Such organisations, particularly those with roots in the Catholic Church, may be well established in Ireland and thus were equipped to weather the storm of the pandemic. Additionally, religious organisations have begun to professionalise according to sectoral regulations more recently. Even longstanding religious organisations are now registering as CLGs and therefore reporting financial data where they had not previously.

The greatest decreases in income were experienced by the Arts and Sport, at 25% and 11% respectively. Other sectors experienced minimal changes from 2019 to 2020. Table 3 below, presents the percentage change in total income for each subsector.

5% of the organisations in the sample reported zero income and 3% reported zero expenditure.

INCOME DISTRIBUTION

The sector's average income was €613,000 in 2020. Nevertheless, more than half of organisations reported a total yearly income between €50,000 and €250,000. About 5% of organisations in the sample reported no income during 2019 and 2020. Organisations earning less than €50,000 per annum increased by 2.6% in 2020 compared to 2019, while the percentage of organisations with an income in excess of €10 million remained unchanged. Meanwhile, organisations with over €50,000 but below €10 million decreased by 3.2% (Table 4). This reflects the reduction in income experienced as a result of the Covid-19 pandemic and its greater impact on smaller organisations.

Figure 5, below, presents income by subsector in relation to population size. Education & Research and Health had the greatest proportions of income in relation to their populations, while Local Development & Housing and Education & Research, respectively, reported the highest total incomes. As in previous years, Health, while small in size, brings in substantially more income than is proportional to its size.

FUNDING MODELS

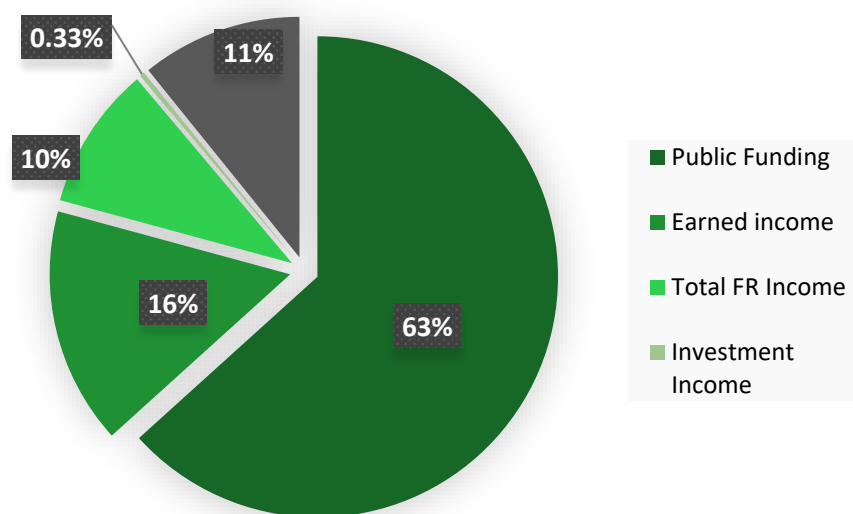

Sources of income have been categorized as follows:

- Income from public sources: Includes state and European grants and any funds coming from local government authorities (potentially including Covid-19 subsidies).
- Earned income: Income derived from operations that are aligned with the organisation's purpose or objective.
- Fundraised income: Primarily individual and corporate donations but also includes legacies, bequests, income from charity events and other types of fundraising.
- Investment income
- Other income: Includes Sponsorship, Exceptional items, other general sources of income and types of income that were unclassified or categorized as 'sundry' or 'miscellaneous'.

The sector experienced a significant decrease in earned and fundraised income, the second and third largest sources of funding. It is estimated that 71% of nonprofits transitioned to online delivery of services, 60% were forced to restructure services and 56% adjusted premises only 4 and a half months after the beginning of the pandemic (The Wheel 2020). This need for immediate adaptation placed significant strain on the sector, with substantial support required through government grants and subsidies. Sectors previously relying on earned and fundraised income were more heavily impacted than those relying in statutory income. Figure 6 below presents the distribution of funding sources for the sector during 2020.

PUBLIC FUNDING

Public funding increased by 11%

Public funding has traditionally been the dominant funding source in the nonprofit sector in Ireland. In 2020, 63% of all funding was publicly sourced, an increase from 2019. It is important to note that almost 80% of State funding was directed to just 12% of organisations in the sector. Major recipients are large and medium sized organisations and are mainly found in the social services, health or housing and local development subsectors. As illustrated in Table 5, 45% of organisations witnessed an increase in public funding, while 29% experienced a decrease and 27% saw no change from 2019-2020.

Table 5. Change in Public Funding

State Funding 2019 - 2020	Percentage of organisations

Decrease	29%
No Change	27%

The total public funding of the sector is estimated to have been around €11 billion, representing an increase of €1.1 billion from the previous year. An estimated 73% of the organisations in the sector received public funding, representing a 3% increase from the previous financial year.

Sample size: 55

It is estimated that an additional one thousand organisations received Public Funding in 2020, which was concentrated mainly in the Local Development & Housing and Health subsectors (Figure 7).

EARNED INCOME

Earned income decreased by 25%

Earned Income was severely affected by the pandemic's onset in 2020. Covid-19 restrictions compromised the ability of nonprofits to continue their normal activity, culminating in a 25% reduction in total earned income. This decrease is estimated to have cost the sector approximately €950 million. In 2019, earned income represented 24% of the total income, whereas in 2020 it accounted for just 16%. Despite this, the sector raised €2.83 billion in Earned Income.

Just 42% of the organisations in the sample reported some type of Earned Income during 2020. Of them, 37% experienced a decrease in earned income and only 16% witnessed an increase during 2020, those that reported an increase were predominately from the Local Development and Housing subsector.

Table 6. Change in Earned Income

Sample size: 1,003

All subsectors experienced a decrease in earned income with the exception of Education and Research, which experienced a slight increase. Education was uniquely able to adapt to the situation and continue to bring in earned revenue, maybe more so than other subsectors, because of their infrastructure/objectives. However, other subsectors, notably the Arts, Culture, Media, Religion, Advocacy, Law, Politics and Recreation and Sport were particularly impacted by the cancellation of in-person events. Below, figure 8 presents Earned income by sector as a proportion of total income, highlighting that earned income is a substantial percentage of income for Health, Education, Environment and Professional subsectors.

FUNDRAISED INCOME

Fundraised income decreased by 17%

A considerable amount of the income of nonprofit and charitable organisations is derived from fundraising. The effects of Covid-19 in the economy are reflected in the fundraising trends for 2020. We estimate that nonprofits have experienced a loss of €343 million in fundraising income during the year. In 2020, the sector experienced a decrease in fundraised income for the first time after years of continuous growth since the 2008 economic recession, which had a significant impact on fundraising, decreasing it by 13% (table 7). The repercussion of the crisis derived from the Covid-19 pandemic was even greater; fundraised income decreased by 17%. However, it is important to note the resilience of the sector going forward and its ability to recover after the 2008 crisis. Further analysis of the performance in 2021 and 2022 will allow understanding of the sector's recovery.

In spite of all the difficulties experienced, the sector managed to fundraise nearly €1.71 billion. Fundraised income represented 10% of the total income in 2020, falling from 12% in 2019. The majority of nonprofits (68%) of the sample reported some type of fundraised income in 2020. 38% of organisations experienced a decrease in their fundraised income, a similar number reported no change and 24% reported an increase (table 8). This report found that a decrease in fundraised income was more common among smaller organisations, while medium and large organisations were more likely to experience an increase (table 9). This finding reflects the ongoing struggle for smaller, often capacity-strapped organisations to adapt and respond to new challenges and highlights the need for increased awareness and supports to ensure their resilience.

There was a significant increase in the number of organisations reporting Fundraised income among the sample used for 2020 compared to 2019. An improvement on the quality of financial data provided by organisations, may come as a consequence of the Financial Report Consortium in July 2020, which advised organisations to ensure a high level of disclosure in their annual accounts in order to allow a proper assessment of the impact of Covid-19 on the figures presented and prospects of companies.

Figure 9, below, presents Fundraised income as a proportion of total income by subsector. Proportions of Fundraised income decreased in all subsectors with the exception of Recreation and Sport, which increased slightly.

Where did Fundraising come from in 2020?

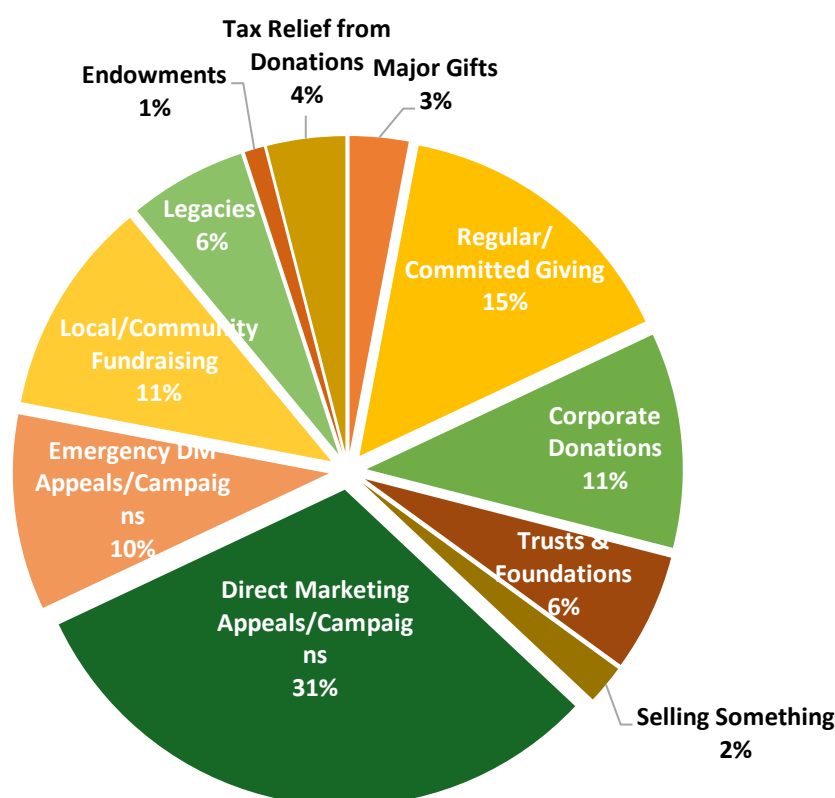

In 2020, the majority of fundraised income was derived from individual donations. Such donations include regular/committed giving, online donations to campaigns, legacies/bequests and major donations. Many organisations do not provide details of the source of donations or present their fundraised income in aggregate, inhibiting its analysis. As a result, this report draws on the non-representative sample provided in the Irish Giving Index⁴ to provide a breakdown of fundraised income by source.

According to the findings of the Irish Giving Index 2020 Annual Landscape Report, 41% of fundraised income came from Direct Marketing Appeals and Campaigns. This source of income increased significantly in comparison to 2019 due to the rise of Emergency Direct Marketing Appeals and Campaigns. The remainder of income was mainly concentrated in Regular/Committed Giving (15%), Local/Community Fundraising (11%), Corporate Donations (11%) and Legacies (6%). Other sources include Selling Something, Major Gifts, Tax Relief from Donations. Income from Trusts and Foundations, at 6% of the mix, doubled proportionally from 2019 but remains relatively low. This may be indicative of Ireland's maturing philanthropic infrastructure, which, while falling short of that of other, comparable economies, continues to develop.

Only 16% of organisations sampled recorded investment income as a source of income in 2020

Investment income decreased in 2020. Although the subsample is too small to provide a segregated analysis, it does provide a figure on investment income trends overall. Investment income represented only 0.33% of the sector's funding model, down from 0.87% in 2019. The average investment income was €25,584, though half of organisations reported investment income below €100 (Figure 10). This is indicative of the composition of this income source, which, for most organisations, consisted of bank interest payments and other, similar low risk, low-reward methods of investment. Investment, overall, remained an underdeveloped method of income generation for the sector.

OTHER SOURCES OF INCOME

11% of the total funding model came from other sources of income

Around 11% of the total income reported by the sector was classified as “other income”. This category includes exceptional items and a small amount of sponsorships (0.3%). While many nonprofits do not report sponsorships as a source of income, it is a conventional source among organisations in Recreation & Sport. In 2020, the subsector brought in about €13 million from this source, representing 70% of the sector's total sponsorship income.

Most of the ‘other’ income category, however, is attributed to unknown sources. Figure 11 provides a proportional breakdown by subsector of ‘other income’, adjusted by subsector size. While most sectors reported a coherent amount of unknown income, Environment, Religion and Philanthropy reported proportionally significant amounts of ‘other income’. This demonstrates the shortcomings in reporting practices and the continued gap in data sharing, as well as a need for standardized definitions to be adapted in the nonprofit sector.

FUNDING MODEL BY SUBSECTOR

Public funding represents the main source of income in most subsectors, especially Advocacy, Law & Politics (91%); Local Development & Housing (81%); and Social Services (76%). Earned income was found to be the second largest source of funding, representing over a quarter of income in the Health, Education, Environment and Professional & Vocational subsectors. Fundraised income ranged from 7% to 14% of the total income in most of the sectors. Nevertheless, Religion (40%) and Philanthropy (23%), subsectors with traditionally ingrained cultures of giving, managed to maintain high levels of fundraised income.

COST OF FUNDRAISING

The average cost to raise €1 was €0.18 in 2020 compared to €0.20 in Q4 2019

According to the Giving Index analysis, in 2020, the average cost to raise €1 was €0.18.⁵ Selling something was the most expensive method, with a cost of €1.53 for each €1 raised. Contrarily, Emergency DM (Direct Marketing) Appeals/Campaigns had the lowest associated cost (Figure 13). Other methods, such as Legacies, Corporate Donations and Trust and Foundation income continued to cost relatively little, making them attractive options in terms of return on investment.

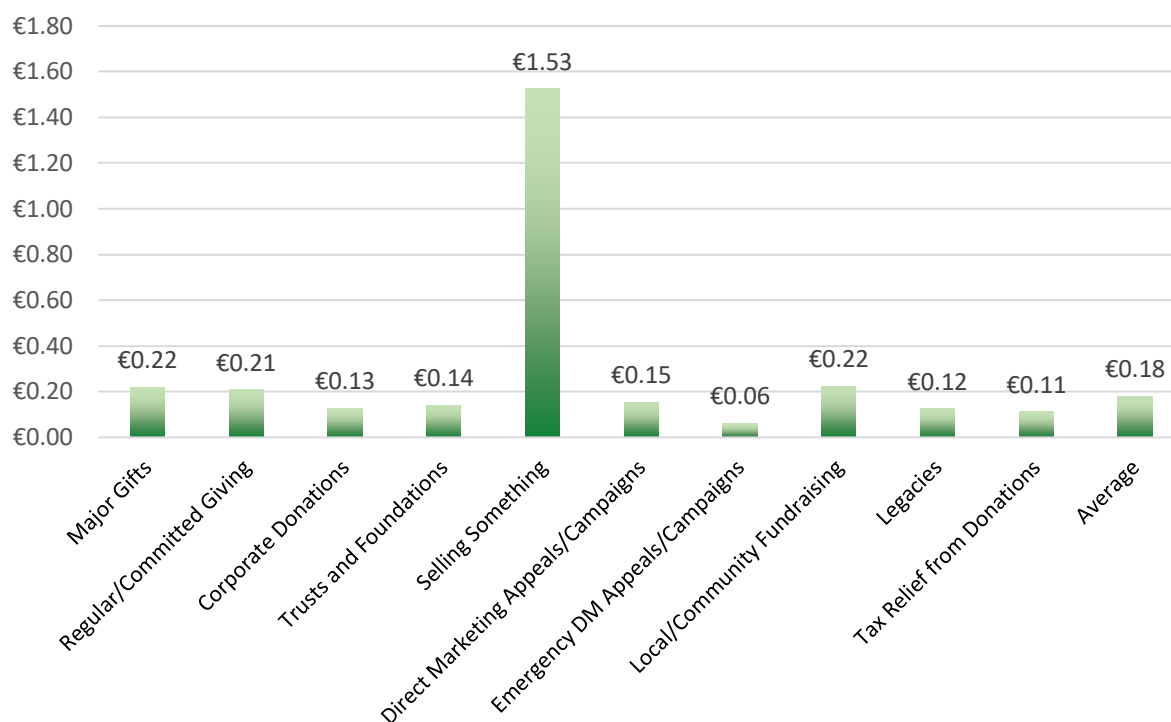

Despite the higher economic cost of selling something, it is important to note that this method, when utilized alongside other methods, provides other returns on investment, such as sustained cash flow and brand recognition among donor networks. Likewise, while other methods, such as Legacies/Bequests, have low associated costs, these methods require a greater investment in time. Such cost and time differentials between fundraising methods highlight the ability of a varied mix of methods to ensure a resilient and strategic fundraising model.

The cost of fundraising decreased substantially between 2019 and 2020. The Giving Index reveals a decrease in cost across most methods of fundraising. For instance, DM Appeals/Campaigns have decreased their cost by €0.25, while the cost of Local/Community Fundraising decreased by €0.24. This may reflect the transition to less costly, online methods of fundraising. Reductions of cost in other methods, such as Corporate Donations, however, may reflect reduced investment by organisations. Conversely, more traditional methods, such as Selling, for example in charity shops, may have struggled to adapt to the pandemic landscape.

The overall decrease in fundraising costs suggests that the sector responded to Covid-19 by reducing investment in fundraising. Costs associated with fundraising have traditionally sparked questions by the public and fostered an aversion toward substantial investment in income generation. The reduced investment in fundraising during a time of crisis suggests that the long-held debate surrounding nonprofit overheads and administrative costs continues to hinder the professionalization and full potential of the sector.

INTERNATIONAL COMPARISONS

GLOBAL PHILANTHROPY ENVIRONMENT

Comparing the nature of Ireland's nonprofit sector with other world-leading social economies is crucial to visualizing the sector's strengths and areas in need of development. The GPEI 2022 (Global Philanthropy Environment Index) is a key tool for understanding both the changes occurring within philanthropic environment worldwide and the Republic of Ireland's performance relative to similar economies. Therefore, this index is used as a starting point from which this report constructs a picture of Ireland's position within a larger giving ecosystem. The GPEI assesses the incentives and barriers to giving in 91 different countries and economies, spanning a complex system of regulations, politics, and cultures that shape philanthropy worldwide. The study covers a period from 2018 to 2020. Therefore, results are inclusive of but not specific to a Covid-19 pandemic context. The findings cover a period that witnessed numerous natural catastrophes, political conflicts, migration crises, and a worldwide health crisis.

The GPEI provides an indicator of "favourable philanthropic environment" that uses a scale from 1 to 5, in which 1 represents a highly restricted environment and 5 a highly favourable philanthropic environment. An enabling philanthropic environment is described as a system providing the right incentives and restrictions to influence in a positive manner the capacity of nonprofits and individuals to pursue sustainable philanthropic activities (GPEI 2022).

The GPEI presents Northern Europe (Norway, Sweden, Finland and Denmark) as the highest scoring region with an average score of 4.72. The United States is also on the top of the ranking with a score of 4.76, along with Canada (4.44). Western Europe countries take the 3rd position in the list. Ireland's philanthropic environment received a score of 4.26, standing ahead of the United Kingdom (4.07) and far above the global average (3.63). This score emphasises the strengths of Irish giving culture, though significant potential remains for further development of Ireland's philanthropic ecosystem, particularly in terms of its tax infrastructure, which limits incentives toward large-scale giving.

The indicator is constructed with different factors, such as the ease of operating a philanthropic organisation or the political, economic and socio-cultural environments. Table 10, below, presents the values for these factors, along with the overall GPEI score for Ireland, United Kingdom and the United States⁶. While the US has a higher score across the four factors, Ireland fares slightly better than the UK in all factors with the exception of economic environment, indicating that the UK has better economic conditions to sustain and promote individual giving and institutional philanthropy. Ireland's laws and regulations present a stronger incentive for the creation and operation of nonprofits, although this score is very close to that of the UK. The political environment factor in Ireland indicates a satisfactory position in terms of relationships between the government and philanthropic organisations, along with public policies and philanthropic practices. The Irish socio-cultural environment factor stands well above the global average, implying that the country's societal values provide a positive environment for philanthropy, as a result of its philanthropic traditions, public trust, and awareness. Such a score indicates Ireland's progress in repairing the public's confidence in the sector following a number of events garnering negative publicity, though in 2019, just over half (54%) of people agreed that most charities were trustworthy (CAF Ireland Giving Report 2020).

	Ireland	United Kingdom	United States	Global Average
Ease of Operating a Philanthropic Organisation	4.73	4.67	4.83	3.97
Political Environment	4	3.75	4.5	3.51

Socio-cultural environment	4.5	4	5	3.82
Overall score	4.26	4.07	4.76	3.63

INTERNATIONAL COMPARISONS ON SOURCES OF FUNDRAISED INCOME

In 2020, Ireland's fundraising relied mainly on individual giving (77%), which increased in relation to the previous year (70%). For this analysis, individual giving encompasses appeals and campaigns, major donations, regular/committed giving and other general donations. Trust and Foundations represented 6% of the total giving, as did Legacies and Bequests, which decreased, proportionally, by half from the previous year. Corporate Giving was the second largest source of fundraising (11%) (Figure 15).

Conversely, the UK and the US have smaller proportions of giving coming from individuals and corporations, due to higher contributions from Trusts and Foundations, and Legacies and Bequests. Countries of a comparable population to Ireland, which has 164 trusts and foundations, have a considerably higher number of this type of entities (Benefacts, 2021). This, in part, explains the lower proportion of giving from this source compared to the UK and the US (Figures 16 and 17). Nevertheless, these comparisons must be taken as a guidance only, as trusts and foundations in the UK include state-operated entities whereas Giving Ireland defines philanthropy as being non-state.

In this way, Ireland's giving infrastructure can be seen to be maturing while remaining comparatively underdeveloped, with conditions for philanthropic institutions not as favourable as that of their counterparts. Other factors contribute to this phenomenon, including a greater presence of historic wealth in the UK and US, with longer standing traditions of foundational giving and legacy-making. While Ireland has begun to develop its legacy culture, it will take several years to see returns on this method.

GIVING PER CAPITA

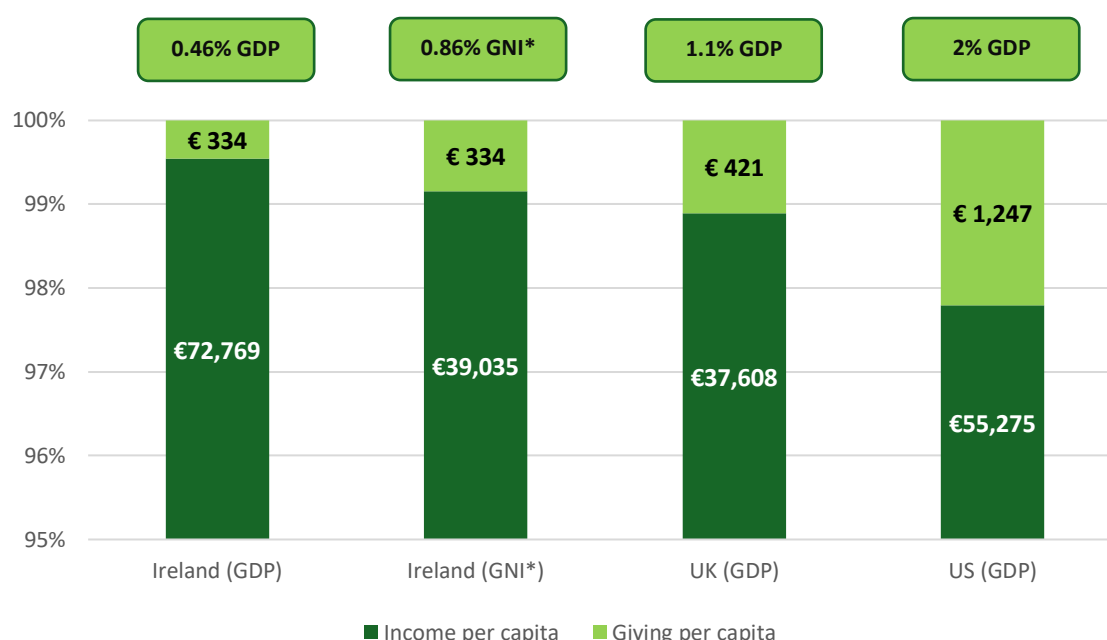

Giving Ireland estimates Giving Per Capita to have been €334 in 2020, a considerable decrease from the previous year (€362).

During 2020, Ireland saw charitable giving decrease, while state funding increased in response to the pandemic's impact. Contrarily, an increase in fundraising occurred in the US compared to 2019 (Giving USA 2020). The UK reported increasing giving levels through the initial phase of the UK's lockdown in the spring of 2020. Yet, the full year results and analysis of trends into 2021 show a significant decline by the end of 2020, precisely a period when donation levels are usually at their peak. In addition, the UK reported donations that were greater in size at the beginning of the pandemic whereas over the year, fewer people reported having given to charity (CAF UK Giving Report 2021).

Ireland still fell behind the UK in giving per capita. The gap between the two, which had closed for the first time in 2019, reappeared in 2020 (Giving Ireland 2021). The US reported the highest giving per capita, observing an increase during the first year of the pandemic. Additionally, giving as a percentage of GDP was considerably lower in Ireland, whereas it increased slightly in the UK and was maintained at 2% in the US, as in previous years (Figure 18). Due to the nature of the Irish economy, which is characterized by a global diaspora and strong multinational corporate presence, GNI* (Modified Gross National Income) is also used when comparing Ireland internationally, to capture a truer picture of the Irish economy (Economic Statistics Review 2017). When using GNI*, the percentage of Giving (0.86%) falls closer the percent of GDP in the UK (1.1%), but still indicates a gap between Ireland's giving culture and that of the UK and US.

Figure 18. International Giving per capita and as percent of GDP, 2020

The €334 given per capita in Ireland is unevenly distributed between sectors. Religion received the most giving at €90 per capita, followed by Education, Research (€57) and Recreation and Sports (€50). Meanwhile, Professional & Vocational, Advocacy, Law & Politics and International development organisations received the least giving per capita.

CONCLUSION

Giving Ireland 2022 provides a unique viewpoint of the Irish nonprofit sector, identifying the challenges that nonprofits faced when the Covid-19 pandemic was at its peak. This report seeks to understand the sector's response to the pandemic, support its recovery and promote continued growth going forward. 2020 was a year marked by an unprecedented health crisis, resulting in economic and social consequences for all economies and a great impact on the Irish nonprofit sector that led to a loss of €1 billion. Many organisations faced disturbances, especially smaller nonprofits and those with fundraising mixes favouring methods which relied on in-person interaction. Conversely, bigger organisations tended to have more mechanisms at their disposal and thus experienced greater ease in adapting to an unprecedented situation.

Earned and fundraised income decreased drastically in a context where the sector had experienced growth in both sources for more than a decade. While organisations' ability to continue their normal activities was compromised, giving capacity by the public was likewise harmed by uncertainty and distress, negatively affecting fundraising. While an increase in Public Funding assuaged the short-term damage in the sector, the longer-term effects of Covid-19 in fundraising and earned income remain unknown. This report, however, highlights the sector's capacity for recovery, both historically, following the economic crisis of 2008, and going forward. Two years on, while anecdotal evidence supports the sector's quick return to 'normal', further analysis on post-pandemic trends in giving will be crucial to understanding the long-term impact on the sector.

In the future, organisations will continue to face complex challenges in their operating and funding environments. Proactive, strategic fundraising and facilitated access to new technologies will play a critical role in ensuring that Irish nonprofits are equipped to return stronger than ever. In this sense, we highlight that online fundraising has come to stay, often with smaller associated costs and added efficiency. As well, the ability of organisations to demonstrate social impact and build relationships continues to be vital to their success.

However, broader, structural changes will be crucial for the sector's full recovery and future, sustained growth. Fit-for-purpose tax policies surrounding charitable giving and philanthropy remain crucial to making a step change in Ireland's giving culture, while, in the absence of Benefacts, improved public access to data on non-charity organisations is important to gaining a full picture of the sector. Meanwhile, the Irish Government's first, consultative National Philanthropy Strategy is both a welcome and timely development.

We believe that the Irish nonprofit sector has continued to demonstrate its presence at the heart of Irish society. With this in mind, Giving Ireland reemphasizes the enormous potential of the sector to grow and thrive, despite emerging challenges.
